GSA AWARDS HOSKY COMMUNICATIONS CONTRACT FOR IRMCO CONFERENCE MANAGEMENT SERVICES

Washington, DC – The U.S. General Services Administration (GSA) has selected Hosky Communications Inc. (HCI) to manage and produce for GSA the Interagency Resources Management Conference (IRMCO), government’s primary forum for senior federal executives and program managers.

Peg Hosky, HCI’s President said, “IRMCO is the only government owned management conference that supports senior executives governmentwide. GSA continuously strengthens IRMCO to adapt the newest management tools, methods and practices that government executives can use to deal with the challenges their agencies face in this rapidly changing world. Hosky Communications was chosen as IRMCO’s new conference management and support contractor to help government fulfill IRMCO’s mission.

“We are pleased to have the opportunity to build upon our nine year relationship with GSA in strategic program areas such as IRMCO,” continued Hosky.

Bill Howell, HCI’s Senior Vice President and General Manager, IRMCO, and an eight-year veteran IRMCO conference manager said, “IRMCO is an extraordinary event because the attendees, speakers, keynotes and sponsors are all senior thought leaders in their own right. Our job at IRMCO is to create an opportunity and a forum for these distinguished participants to share their ideas and solutions along with government best practices and OMB policy.”

GSA’s IRMCO conference, presented by the U.S. General Services Administration for 47 years, is attended by executives and managers from every Federal agency, many state, local, and international government organizations, key industry executives and the media. The conference is a focused and unencumbered environment where executives and thought leaders interact to address the important business, management and information technology issues facing government today and in the future.

Hosky Communications Inc. is a small, woman-owned business providing strategic industry relations, public relations, marketing communications, and event services to a broad range of government, commercial, nonprofit and media organizations.
